The 3-year Dreamkeepers grant that WITC received from the Great Lakes Higher Education allow Pell Grant-eligible students to apply for small grants to use on non-tuition/book expenses such as expenses for propane or cars that break down that come up during the semester that would otherwise keep them from graduating.
Debbie Meyer and Diane Schobert provided an overview of the UW-Extension Financial Capability program that they created. They are the financial coaches for this pilot project that was offered in the fall of 2012 at WITC–Rice Lake and will expand to WITC–New Richmond in the spring term of 2013. The goal of this project is to provide students with a basic understanding of the financial tools and practices that lead to their stronger long-term economic stability. Three basic workshops were offered on emotional spending, credit management, and short-term/long-term savings, as well as one-on-one financial coaching. A total of 181 students participated in the fall workshops. The long-term goals for this project are to reduce the student loan default rate, increase the student retention rate, and increase the student graduation rate. Handouts were provided at the meeting.
