Due to the cumulative nature of federal financial aid requirements, it is very important that you take the adding and dropping of classes under careful consideration. How you do in your classes this semester can impact your financial aid for many future semesters. You are strongly encouraged to meet with a campus counselor before changing you schedule.

Green Light: Your cumulative GPA is at least a 2.0 and you have successfully completed at least 67% of all credits attempted. Most new students are admitted on the green light status.

Yellow Light: Financial aid warning. You have not met the green light standards. You will be required to meet with a counselor and complete a Student Self-Assessment. You may remain in the yellow light status for only one semester.

Red Light: After a semester on yellow light status, you still do not meet the green light standards. You may be denied financial aid. You must complete an appeal for financial aid. A consult with a counselor is required.
