

Introduction

The Employer Satisfaction Survey provides the mechanism for obtaining feedback from employers regarding the effectiveness of technical education in preparing individuals for employment. Conducted biannually by WITC, the study enables employers to rate graduates in three broad areas: technical work skills, people skills, and attitude. The information obtained in the study serves as a valuable tool for the evaluation of educational programs and services offered by WITC.